TECHNICAL SPECIFICATION

SCOPE OF SERVICE

3.1.TITLE OF THE PROJECT WORK

“Geotechnical Investigations for the Paradip Port Basin and Approach Channel”

3.1.1 Introduction

Department of Ocean Engineering, IIT Madras, Chennai intends to conduct field study for the Geotechnical Investigations of the Paradip Port Basin and Navigational Channel including the approach channel and entrance channel.

3.1.2 Objectives & Scope

The project scope is to conduct Geotechnical investigations of Paradip Port (Fig 1) Basin and Approach channel.

Fig 1. Location map of Paradip Port, Odisha

3.1.3 Scope of Work

Geotechnical Investigation of the Paradip Port Basin and Navigational Channel is to identify the sub bottom layers seabed, soil and rock types, determining the in-situ physical and mechanical properties of the materials and sampling of materials for laboratory tests. The Paradip port Basin and Navigational Channel boundary shown in figure.2 covering an area of approximately 14km. into the sea with approximately 300m wide. The total tentative borehole number is 46 within the Port Basin (approximately 10nos) and Navigational Channel (approximately 36nos). The envisaged borehole locations will be less than (-) 25 m water depth w.r.t CD.

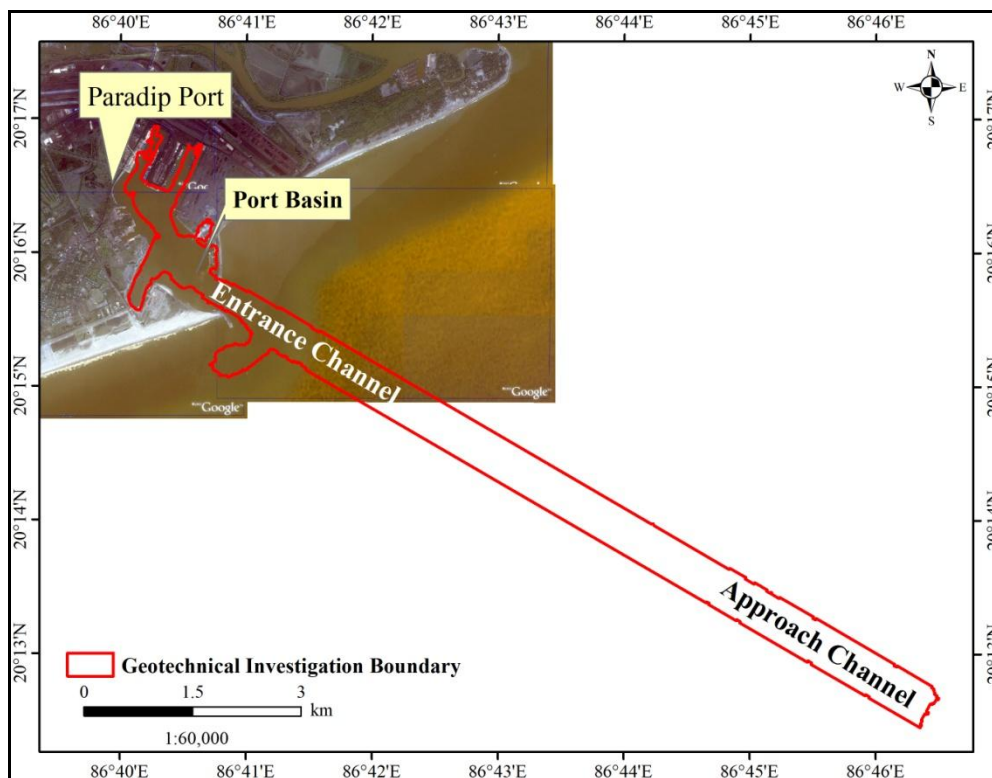

Fig 2. Geotechnical Investigation Boundary for Paradip Port

The Detailed Geotechnical Investigations along with the followings:

- To carry out subsoil investigation by drilling 150 mm dia boreholes.
- All boreholes shall be terminated at -8 m depth from the prevailing bed level of navigational channel/basin.
- Standard testing will be upto 5 m deep, sample test will be in 1 m interval and after 5m test will be 1.5 m interval.
- Undisturbed samples will be collected if clay layer encountered.
- When the change in strata, additional samples will be collected.

- During the course of investigation additional samples may require to collect.
- To conduct the test as indicated and any other that may be found necessary during the execution of the project.
- The identification of the materials, soil, rock, hard surface materials along with their types, formation and details (locations, extent, classification, properties, etc)
- Identification of sub bottom layers of seabed
- In-situ Physical and Mechanical properties of the seabed materials
- Sampling of Materials for Laboratory tests
- Investigation techniques includes:
 - Wide range of the sampling
 - Grab Sampler
 - SPT
 - UDS
 - Drilling
 - Coring
 - Testing techniques
 - Vibro-Coring
- Classification of soil as per Indian Standard IS:1498-1970
- PIANC Soil Classification
- Borehole Investigations includes:
 - Particle Size Analysis and Atterberg Limits
 - Density & Moisture content
 - Shear Strength
 - Cohesion
 - Bulk Density
 - SPT/N-Value
- Borehole arranged entire profile area in staggered
- Intermediate borehole may planned whenever intricacies
- Vertical accuracy is critical and tides have to be correctly accounted to boring depths.
- Number of boreholes in rocky area will/may be decided later by the port.

- The number, locations and the depth of boreholes and the test on core samples collected may be varied depending upon the material found during the progress of investigation.
- Hard Strata & Rocky region the followings also to be assessed
 - a. Compressive/Tensile Strength
 - b. Density and Porosity
 - c. Hardness and Abrasiveness
 - d. Core Recovery and Rock Quality Designation (RQD)
 - e. Logging and Fracture state
- Report including the equipments used for marine sampling, laboratory, positioning, datum, water depth measurements, boring logs, full laboratory test descriptions and results and field and lab notes.
- A detailed draft and final report comprising the output of all the above-mentioned tests and analysis shall be submitted as laid down in these specifications.
- The Geotechnical investigation shall be carried out in marine environment by mobilizing suitable marine spread to conduct soil investigations, borehole, etc. The marine spread shall be in the form of jack-up rigs, staging platform or any other system to suit the marine conditions. The mobilized system shall be capable of handling men, equipment and machinery of drilling requirement and it shall have sufficient space for drilling operation. The working platform shall provide a stationery work place such that the boring operation is smooth. The written approval prior to mobilize the appropriate marine spread along with detailed methodology of exploration to satisfy the environmental conditions at the proposed site.
- The necessary arrangements to transport the personnel and officials visiting the site by means of suitable boats from land to offshore investigation location and back whenever required during investigations. Suitable care shall be taken during investigation in the offshore by providing life jackets, lifeboats and any other safety devices/emergency devices to prevent any accident.
- The chart adopting should be in UTM projections showing Northing & Easting and global grids (latitude & longitude) on each.
- Laboratory Results of all tests shall be submitted as per relevant IS Codes.

- All samples shall be identified with date, borehole number, depth of sample etc. Standard Penetration Test shall be carried out at the termination depth and recorded
- Sufficient number of soil samples shall be collected (Disturbed soil samples & Undisturbed samples)
- To carry out all associated works like removal and disposal of debris, setting up and removal and temporary facilities at no extra cost.
- Use suitable positioning system for fixing the position of boreholes in geo-technical investigation. The bidder shall clearly indicate the methodology for maintaining the horizontal / vertical control in the proposal/write up.
- If rock is encountered, the borehole may be terminated 1 m into the rock and after taking core of 50mm sample.

3.2 Bill of Quantity
