In this case we also need you to submit a performance report on the effect of AC servo/magnetic levitation on the quality of diamond cutting such as surface finish, precision of cutting, material loss, etc. (Proof to be submitted)].
4	The average surface roughness (Ra) of the diamond after laser cutting and slicing should be in the range of 10-20 nm or better (Proof to be provided).
5	The laser set up should include the fixtures for operations including tilting, coring, and slicing for enhanced stability and accurate positioning of the diamond workpiece.
6	Technical discussion on the laser components and optics, also technical guidance on the possibility for modification of the setup based on our research work.
V. Other Terms & Conditions
